Background

An important event in every maritime and commercial arbitrator's calendar, the International Congress of Maritime Arbitrators (ICMA) is a forum for maritime arbitrators, lawyers and for the shipping industry from around the world in which to deliberate on and exchange views and news of professional interest.

ICMA has grown to host delegates from 26 countries on average, presenting approximately 100 papers. The international maritime conferences are generally composed of arbitrators, lawyers, ship owners, charterers, and other industry professionals.

Aside from providing a forum for discussion and serious, scholarly papers, the Congress always includes a social program for accompanying persons and delegates. A black tie dinner is a tradition, as are one or two cocktail parties.
